Originally built in 1921 and reconstructed in 1931 after being destroyed by a brush fire in 1929, the Pilgrimage Theatre in 1976 was renamed the John Anson Ford Theater in honor of L.A. County Supervisor John Anson Ford, a great supporter of the arts. After renovations, which began in late 2014, the 1,245-seat Ford Theatre reopened for the summer 2016 season. Owned and operated by the County of Los Angeles, the theatre complex is known for presenting an eclectic summer season of music and dance by Los Angeles-based artists.
